

Scott Fisher

Exact Sciences Corporation

Scott has a multidisciplinary career spanning several industries including Pharmaceutical, Medical Device, Healthcare IT and Start-up Biotechnology. He has been part of 5 early-stage companies, where he led clinical research, led strategy and was chief executive officer. Early in his career, Scott was a member of the team that developed and received FDA approval for ABRAXANE®.

Now in the diagnostics industry, Scott is the Head of Academic Collaborations at Exact Sciences Corporation, one of the largest molecular diagnostics company in the world. At Exact, he spearheads academic and industrial collaboration and advocates for the